International Journal of Obstetric Anesthesia

Patient Consent to Publication

I give my full permission to the publication of written information about my medical care which may include photographs of myself, including those of my face, in the International Journal of Obstetric Anesthesia in both printed and on-line versions, and in other Elsevier publications including books, journals, CD-ROMs and those which are available on-line.

I understand that information will be published without my name attached and that the publishers Elsevier will make every effort to ensure my anonymity although it is possible that somebody, such as a member of staff or a relative, may be able to identify me.

I declare, in consequence of granting this permission, that I have no claim on the grounds of breach of confidence or any other legal system against - (insert author's name) - and Elsevier in respect of publication of written material or photographs relating to my medical care.

I agree to release and discharge (insert author's name), the editors and Elsevier, and their agents, successors and assigns from claims, demands or causes of action that I may have for libel, defamation, invasion of privacy of copyright or violation of any other rights arising from the use of my image or case history.

I understand that my agreement to consent to publication is voluntary and that I am free to refuse to grant my permission without it changing the quality of care I receive or will receive in the future.

I can withdraw my consent up to the time when the manuscript is accepted for publication when this will no longer be possible.
